

Managed Trading Accounts

Imagine the benefits of having a fully managed trading account managed by a trading expert. Instead of placing trades yourself, you let industry experts handle things. The traders who manage your account are backed up by experience, sophisticated trading software, knowledge about risk-minimizing approaches and the ability to place trades with a chance of 80% success rate. A fully managed trading account from HW Securities lets you check progress in real-time by logging into your trading account to see your traders progress 24/7.

HW Securities employs some of the worlds best trading experts, with many years of experience in the fields of currency trading, indices, metals trading and commodities. Most of them worked previously for huge trading companies, international brokerage firms and professional financial markets analysts .

HW Securities is the 'go to' destination for many investors who do not have enough time nor experience to manage their accounts by themselves, we will manage your account on your behalf , you just need to set back and relax while our team of dedicated experts trade your account and provide you with the highest possible monthly return .

HFT Technology

HW Securities provides sophisticated and institutional clients an opportunity to participate in managed algorithmic investment programs strictly trading the currency markets.

Until recent years, high frequency trading was a cooperates ball game, simply not cost effective for the private investors to have access to. However in recent years the technology has become more readily available, and with our expert traders to hand, the profit potentials are endless.

Computer-assisted rule-based algorithmic trading uses dedicated programs that produce "POTENTIAL TRADES" on allocated marketplaces for our analysts to study. Exploiting market conditions that can't be detected by the human eye, HFT algorithms bank on finding profit potential in the ultra-short time duration.

Our 3 trade strategy consists of a potential trade from the technology being passed to our experienced analysts to study, who then pass it on to the traders to make the final decision.

HW Securities is a Hong Kong based state of the art investment firm that offers sophisticated, yet transparent currency investments. A traded account receives the exact same trades as traders account with adjusted lot sizes relative to the investor's capital. Unlike managed funds, our trading ccounts are not pooled into one large fund. Each account is segregated from one another, in a ring fenced account and is held in the investor's name where he or she retains full ownership.

HW Securities offer clients a diverse and unique opportunity to actively trade the foreign exchange market. We do this by leveraging the experience of professional traders who have demonstrated the ability to consistently generate returns over the long term while also monitoring and managing downside.

Benefits Of Working With HW Securities

Our Trading Software

Our in house proprietary software allows our traders to pull several clients in a single account and traded all the accounts there, the percent allocation management module means that the clients will received the trades with their profit or loss according with their percent weight.

Limited Power of Attorney (LPOA)

A Limited Power of Attorney allows an individual or a company to trade and managed a trading account on behalf of another individual or company that grants him this right in exchange of a performance fee.

Performance Calculation

The HW Securities trading software has a way of performance fee calculation that ensure client will only pay over the profit generated on his account by the trader over time.

Our Managed Account Levels

More and more individuals are attracted to our managed currency trading accounts, because they simply don't have the time to trade or are yet to access the profits of the markets. If this sounds like you, we have made it our number one goal to connect you with the highest quality of our managed currency account traders. Take a look at the average performance of our accounts for over the last five years. This information has been provided by some of the largest accountancy and audit companies across the globe.
